

THOUSANDS CHEER ROUND-WORLD FLIERS TODAY

RELIEF COMES TO MIDWEST AS RAINS FALL

This Entire Area Will Have Normal Summer Temperatures

By the Associated Press.

Relief came into the midwest today, as the summer's first heat wave moved into the east and south.

Deaths throughout the United States, attributable to heat and including drownings of the last 24 hours, were estimated at 248, bringing the grand total to about 1,013.

Storms over Wisconsin, Minnesota, Nebraska, Missouri and other northern and far middlewestern states, crept slowly into Illinois, Kentucky and Indiana today. By tonight weather men predict this entire area will have found cooler, more normal summer temperatures.

But as the midwest breathed a sigh of relief, the east and south continued to swelter with the center of the torrid wave moving slowly across Ohio, Michigan and Pennsylvania.

While storms broke over several sections of Kentucky and Missouri yesterday, mercury went down for only a few hours—then bounced back up again. In Wisconsin, Nebraska and Minnesota, however, the current wave seemed definitely ended.

Michigan Suffers.

Michigan, however, had temperatures ranging from 98 to 100 with no relief in sight. The maximum was reported to be 107.5 in Defiance, O., yesterday. At Norwalk, O., rains on the N. K. P. road buckled, thus delaying trains.

Washington, D. C., had a maximum official temperature of 97, although it reached 105 at the Pennsylvania Avenue Kiosk. An electrical storm last evening broke the heat 10 degrees, but not until after federal workers were sent home from temporary buildings because of the heat. The forecast was for continued high temperatures.

Throughout Pennsylvania, West Virginia and the New England states the temperatures continued to soar.

Rain for Illinois.

Relief for northern Illinois was due by tonight at the very latest, weather forecasters said. Two cool waves that were expected to keep the temperatures down to the 70's for the rest of the week, were on their way.

One was bound in from the northern Pacific states, the other from Alberta, Can.

The advance guard of the cooler weather arrived last night following thunderstorms. The temperature in Chicago fell from 88 degrees at 10:10 P. M. to 83 at 10:15 P. M. The relief came as sweltering Chicago's death toll was raised to 219 by 56 deaths.

Hottest July 1.

Yesterday was the hottest July 1 in the history of Chicago, the mercury standing officially at 99 degrees at 4:35 P. M. Other thermometers had temperatures from 101.3 to 107, the latter in the western suburbs.

At Bunker Hill a small twister raged for an hour, thus forcing the temperature down. Despite the heavy downpour Tuesday at Champaign the mercury bounced back up again yesterday. Decatur had temperatures over the 100 mark.

Belvidere reported the heat wave had taken a toll of four human lives, 120 horses, 40 cows, and scores of hogs, sheep and dogs.

Farmers in the neighborhood of Aurora reported oats and barely were ripening prematurely and would yield only light crops. The temperature yesterday reached 97 degrees, bringing death to five.

For the eighth consecutive day the temperature at Quincy passed the century mark.

Mrs. Sophia Yetter Of Steward Is Dead

Terse Items of News Gathered in Dixon During Day

IN POLICE COURT

Joe Santos of Chicago was fined $10 and costs this morning in police court on a vagrancy charge and was sent to the county jail in default of the fine. Lawrence Selover was assessed a fine of $5 and costs on a charge of reckless driving.

THREATENED FAMILY

Eldon Myers, residing north of the city, is in the county jail awaiting trial, following his arrest at an early hour yesterday morning. Police called when Myers was reported to be threatening his family with two razors, and escorted him to the county jail.

COPS NEW UNIFORMS

Members of the police department are wearing and enjoying their new summer uniforms. The patrolmen are not required to wear their coats in the extreme hot weather and a light wool serge uniform has replaced the heavy woolen uniforms which are worn during the winter, under a new order.

TOOK FAMILY SEDAN

Sam Giesman, 17, of Rock Island was taken in custody by Patrolmen Bohnstiel and Jones yesterday afternoon, when the local police were asked to apprehend the young man who was reported to have left home with the family sedan, headed for Chicago. Giesman's father came to Dixon last evening and returned to Rock Island with his son.

MUCH WATER USED

The Dixon Water Company's wells are yielding an average of one million gallons of water daily for use by the consumers, it was stated this morning. On some of the days this week, the pumpage has averaged more than this amount but the gallonage has not been under that figure thus far this week. Last year the wells yielded a total of 28 million gallons for a 31 day period in the month of July. It was stated. An official of the Water company gave out the statement today that almost 48 per cent of the total pumpage was used by the city.

MISSING PET SEEN

The pet Chow dog, the loss of which was advertised in The Telegraph, has been seen with a pack of apparently wild dogs north of the city on several evenings. The owner of the Chow, which has a screw tail, is fearful that farmers, shooting at the pack of dogs, may kill or injure his pet; therefore he renews his appeal that anyone seeing the pet phone H-500, The Telegraph, No. 5, and some one will be sent to attempt to capture the fugitive pet. A reward has been offered for information leading to the return of the animal.

IN CHICAGO HOSPITAL

Miss Josephine Rogers, who with her sister, Miss Della Rogers, was en route from their home at Los Angeles, Cal., arrived in Chicago yesterday.

Globe Circlers In U. S. Again

Around the world in eight days, 15 hours and 51 1/4 minutes, a feat that surpasses Jules Verne's wildest dreams, is the record set by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty. S. soil again at Cleveland, Ohio, during the stop for fuel before their final dash for New York.

FRENCH REFUSAL OF HOOVER PLAN WOULD BE COSTLY

U. S. Points Out Frazee Stands To Lose One Hundred Million

BULLETIN:

Paris, July 2—(AP)—The Franco-American conference scheduled for tonight was suddenly postponed late this afternoon to permit Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Ambassador Edge to confer with Washington on counter-suggestions unofficially received from the French government.

The American negotiators will meet again with Premier Laval tomorrow.

The Associated Press learned that subsequent to today's meeting of the cabinet, information came to the American negotiators which demonstrated the desirability of a new consultation with the Washington government before resuming the official conversations with the French.

The nature of the French counter proposals was not disclosed but both the American and French statesmen decided it was preferable to hold the meeting which had been scheduled for this evening at the Ministry of the Interior.

Washington, July 2—(AP)—From the delicate moratorium snarl there emerged today an unimpaired strand carrying clearly the American warning that failure of President Hoover's plan would cost France about $110,000,000.

As negotiations were resumed in Paris, France had a firm but friendly note from the United States holding that miscarriage of the President's offer to help the world by helping Germany probably would bring a declaration of a moratorium by the chief payer of world war obligations.

"We must assume," the American memorandum said, "that with the present situation in Germany and the failure of the American proposals, then Germany will unquestionably give note for the postponement of all conditional reparations, as provided in the Young plan, and that this portion of inter-governmental payments will not be forthcoming."

President Hoover had said that if other countries would agree to a one-year suspension of reparations the United States would forego its collections on war debts.

Results of Refusal

If all nations but France agreed to a suspension, and Germany declared a moratorium on her conditional payments to France, the note said, the result would be this:

France would collect $105,000,000 from Germany in unconditional annuities; she would pay $105,000,000 into the bank for International Settlements as a guarantee fund; she would be required to pay to the United States and Great Britain about $110,000,000 on her war debt. Thus France would be approximately $111,000,000 in the hole.

Somewhat conciliatory was the American attitude toward the French contention that suspended German payments should be refunded in 5 years instead of 25 as the United States wants. The note said that "we not believe that it would be impossible to reach an agreement on this point provided the other questions could be disposed of."

NEW MACHINES DEVELOPED BY CLIPPER PLANT

Electrically Operated Mowers Now Produced At Factory

The Clipper Mower company plant on Third street has developed two new electric type of mowers, one to be used exclusively in hedge trimming and the other a lawn mower. Both are electrically operated and in their operation take away the drudgery of mowing.

At the present time the company is busy in manufacturing the electric hedge trimming machine which is the only one of the kind now manufactured. It is simple in operation and is being turned out with a 24-inch blade, but shorter or longer blades may be attached to trim any style or shape of hedge. The blade is adjustable to be operated in any angle and the entire trimmer only weighs 13 pounds. The present indication points to a wide demand for this machine throughout the country and many who have seen its operation are highly enthusiastic as to its future.

The company is also building an electrically-propelled and operated lawn mowing machine. The machine is fitted with the same style of blade which has been used by all of the Clipper types for years, but this is operated by an electric motor, and any size blade can be attached.

Elwood Ort, who is developing both new machines has applied for patent rights and is very enthusiastic over the prospect of the hedge trimmer.

"We have just started manufacturing the hedge trimmer, but it has several features which are immediately attractive to the trade," Mr. Ort stated today.

An automobile race in which the participants were guided entirely by directions broadcast from Rome ended recently in Italy with 600 contestants.

GOLD MEDALS FOR DIXON POLICE WHO RISKED LIVES TO CAPTURE AND KILL GUNMAN ON DISPLAY

Two beautiful gold medals, which have been purchased by a popular subscription by business men and citizens to be presented to Patrolmen John Bohnstiel and Harry Fischer, are on display in the east window at the Train jewelry store. A gold bar across the top bears the name of each officer and below, suspended by two gold chains is a round medal. At the top of this is a white gold star in which a diamond is set and below this is engraved:

"For bravery in line of duty, 1931."

On the back of the medal is engraved:

Some Oddities In Wire News Today From Various Parts

LOOKING FOR BREAK

Whitten, S. D., July 2—(UP)—All the luck J. Gulsinger, farmer near here has had this spring has been bad.

He sighed today, hoped to "get a break" and recounted these unfortunate circumstances.

Grasshoppers ate all his crops. His barn burned and with it all his feed, grain and harness.

Lightning struck his house, stunning his wife and seriously injuring his daughter-in-law.

Now she's in the hospital and there is that bill to be paid.

"I hope I don't fall and break my leg on the way home," he said after visiting his daughter-in-law at the Winner hospital.

CONVICTS PLEA WINS

Chicago, July 2—(UP)—A heat inspired petition for a habeas corpus writ freed Carl Bates from the Joliet state penitentiary today after he had served two years on charges of stealing a sewing machine.

Bates hated Joliet, but it wasn't until temperature records fell right and left that he did anything about it. He composed his own petition for a writ and mailed it to Judge Joseph B. David. Bates was ordered brought to Chicago for a hearing.

"It got so hot I figured I ought to be outside enjoying the lake and things," he told David. "I had a notion I was sent up on the wrong party."

Clammer's Boat Is Target Of Marksman

Joseph Laidig of this city, who operates a clamming boat east of the city, complained to Sheriff Fred Richardson of having had three holes shot in his boat yesterday forenoon while clamming above Lowell Park. A similar complaint was also lodged with State Conservation Inspector Henry Keister of this city who is conducting an investigation.

According to Laidig, he and an assistant were operating their clamming boat near the mouth of the seven-mile branch when three rifle bullets were fired from the east shore by a man, whom they believe they will be able to identify. The three bullets struck the boat and cut through its side, according to the report. State's Attorney Mark Keller was informed of the shooting today.

STORY OF FLIGHT TOLD BY FLIERS IN FIFTEEN MIN.

Summed Up The Entire Journey In About A Hundred Words

New York, July 2—(UP)—It took Wiley Post and Harold Gatty less than 15 minutes to describe a flight which took them more than 15,000 miles around the world.

Although the famous aviators appeared worn and haggard from the long grind, both disclaimed being tired.

"Of course," Post explained, "We had about 15 hours sleep in the nine days since we left New York."

Pressed with questions concerning the long and hazardous journey, Post summed up the entire journey in about 100 words.

"We had two bad stretches," he said. "They were from Berlin to Moscow, where we encountered bad weather, and from Siberia to Nome, across the Bering Strait. There we ran into violent storms—the worst of the entire trip. Rain, snow and sleet, beat constantly against our plane and in our faces. The fog at times was so thick it was almost impossible to see the propeller. It was the most terrible weather we have ever flown through."

Hardest Part of Flight

"We found the hardest and most tiring part of the whole flight was going by dead reckoning. Of course, we had to use the compass the entire way. Gatty is a marvelous navigator."

"How does it feel to pilot a ship around the world?" he was asked.

"No different than flying a ship anywhere," he replied.

"And take it from me," Gatty interposed, "he's the best pilot in the world." Each seemed eager to give the other credit for their success.

Gatty was asked whether he took the controls at all.

"No," he answered, "my job was navigating the ship. Post was at the controls through the entire flight."

"The Russians were very nice to us," Post remarked. "I have nothing but praise for them. One night we got stuck in the mud in landing and were held for several hours. There was no modern machinery anywhere in that part of the country that we saw—only manual labor."

"I was so tired that I fell asleep in the cockpit, while 15 husky Russians put their shoulders to the wings and virtually lifted us from the mire."

Didn't Eat Much

"We subsisted on black bread and water while we were there," interposed Gatty. "As a matter of fact we didn't eat much on the entire trip. Out diet consisted mainly of bread and as much water as we could drink. We always had both in the plane."

They were then asked if they thought they had suffered any physical effects from the arduous journey.

"We never felt better," they responded.

Gatty, it was remarked, looked thinner than when he took off.

"I'm sure I don't know," replied the Navigator. "We've just landed and I haven't had a chance to weigh myself. I don't feel any thinner but I may have lost five or six pounds."

"Was there ever a time during the journey when you lost hope?" Post and Gatty were asked.

"No," Post answered emphatically.

NEW YORK CITY GAVE POST AND GATTY TYPICAL WELCOME AFTER THEIR TIME-DEFYING JOURNEY

Parade, Reception At City Hall, Honor Two Aviators

New York, July 2—(AP)—New York, and the millions who are a part of it, gave to two tired men today the spectacular sort of welcome which is preserved for spectacular guests.

Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, back in the city after circling the globe in less than nine days, found New York at its noisiest and at the peak of its enthusiasm. Perched on the cushions of an automobile they made a circuit of the city which probably was only slightly less exciting than the flight itself.

There were crowds all along the route—how many hundreds of thousands no one dared estimate. There was the usual cheering, the usual signs, the usual quantities of ticker tape and torn newspapers tossed from the windows of the financial district.

Crowd Gathered Early

Even before the fliers were out of their beds at 9:30 a. m. a crowd had collected around the doors of the Ritz-Carlton hotel, their headquarters. When they finally made their appearance in the lobby, remarking that they had slept "fine," they were applauded by a hundred guests. Outside, 2,000 more persons had collected, and set up cheers when the two crossed the sidewalk to their automobile.

Some of the onlookers made a rush to close in on them, apparently wanting to shake their hands. For a moment the police line gave, but it was reformed quickly and spectators were pushed back into their places.

Mayor Walker welcomed the men in the flag-draped aldermanic chamber while military and police escorts stood at attention in the plaza below.

He greeted them:

Mayor's Greeting

"When you left Roosevelt Field your ship was known as the Winnie Mae. When you got over Russia I think it was decided that the name had become 'Winnie Must,' and then when you landed back at Roosevelt field last night we knew that the name was 'Winnie Did!'"

More seriously he added:

"You've written another line, yes, another line, yes another page, into history and science."

Post replied:

"It's entirely beyond words for me to express the gratitude we feel to Mayor Walker and the citizens of New York for their welcome to us."

Gatty said he was "mighty glad to be here."

F. C. Hall, backer of the flight told the mayor how much he appreciated the welcome, including his daughter Mrs. Winnie Mae Fain of Long Beach, Cal., in his thanks.

DISORDER AT FIELD

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., July 2—(AP)—One man was in a hospital today and hundreds were nursing bruises as a result of disorder when Wiley Post and Harold Gatty landed their monoplane at the end of their globe circling flight.

Edward Conneron, vice president and general manager of Air Services, Inc., was on the serious list at Nassau county hospital.

He had severe lacerations of the scalp and a possible fracture of the skull. He was placed under arrest and an officer was stationed at the door of his room, although no charge had been placed against him.

He was at the field, where his company has its offices, with his wife. The Nassau county police version of what happened is that he was injured after pushing three policemen off their motorcycles and knocking down two other officers. He was escorted from the field but became so obstreperous, police said, that he was subdued forcibly.

Several women were knocked down. A baby was pushed from its mother's arms and was saved from being trampled to death after it had been stepped on by a number of persons.

Everywhere the car bearing the two fliers went there were crowds pressing forward and night clubs and fists swinging.

A number of reporters and photographers were ignored. One photographer was clubbed.

It was not until Post and Gatty finally left for New York that the club swinging and bedlam ended.

New York, July 2—(AP)—The round the world flight record was down to less than nine days today.

At 7:47 eastern standard time, last night, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty brought their plane down on Roosevelt Field, which they left at 3:56 a. m. a week ago last Tuesday. In eight days, 15 hours and 51 minutes they flew 15,474 miles around the northern hemisphere. The previous record, established by the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin two years ago, was 21 days, seven hours and 34 minutes.

Post, pilot, and Gatty, navigator, left Edmonton at 5:39 a. m. eastern standard time yesterday and flew 1,600 miles to Cleveland, stopping for fuel at 4:15 p. m. They took off from Cleveland 29 minutes later for their last hop and ended an air tour of ten countries, Canada, Newfoundland, Ireland, England, Holland, Germany, Russia, Japanese possessions, Alaska and Canada as well as various American states. The actual flying time was four days, 10 hours and eight minutes, the average speed per hour 145.8.

Crowd Rushed Police

Cheering as crowds had not cheered at New York flying fields since the days of Lindbergh and Chamberlain and Byrd, hundreds burst through police lines on the arrival at Roosevelt field and rushed for

Stray Dogs Doomed: Destruction Ordered

Stray dogs in Dixon are to be exterminated, according to an announcement given out by Commissioner H. A. Brooks of the Department of Public Health and Safety this morning. A dog catcher has been named and ordered to begin work at once in clearing the city of stray and ownerless canines.
Commissioner Brooks stated that the city ordinance pertaining to stray dogs would be enforced to the limit. The city will also exact a license on all dogs in the city and a supply of license tags has been ordered for immediate delivery. The commissioner had not decided whether or not all dogs must be muzzled during the summer, stating that he doubted the advisability of this action, but added that the city ordinance would be rigidly enforced until all stray dogs are captured and removed.

St. Louis Gangster Shot By His Rivals

St. Louis, July 2—(AP)—Edward Menken, 23, Cuckoo gangster, was shot and fatally wounded by two gunmen late last night while Menken was lying on the grass of a parkway in downtown, St. Louis.
The gangster died on the operating table at City Hospital, where he was driven by two men said to be friends of his, and dumped on the steps. He was shot twice in the abdomen, once in the chest, once in the left arm and in the right leg. Gunmen rode by the parkway in an automobile, called "Oed, Eddie" and then sped away.
The shooting, police believe, was the result of a dispute over a liquor deal. Liquor transactions are said to have caused friction between several members of the gang.
Menken had been arrested 181 times during the last ten years. He was held suspected of murder, but was never convicted.

President Hoover, in dispatching congratulations to Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, included an invitation to a luncheon. The fliers' representatives accepted for Monday.

The Chief Executive, a globe trotter himself, followed the flight with interest.

Washington plans a different sort of notice for the world racers than was accorded them here in May when they were just another of a large group making plans.

Congratulations at the completion of the globe flight went out from the federal aviation official down and the Washington Board of Trade made plans for a welcoming banquet when the fliers accept President Hoover's invitation.

—"GREATEST FLIGHT"
New York, July 2—(AP)—Fliers figuratively are tipping their helmets today to a pair of their peers—Pilot Wiley Post and Navigator Harold Gatty.

As aviators, both globe circlers are potential occupiers of fame's pinnacle with that hero of a nation, Charles A. Lindbergh.

Aviators acclaimed a couple of superlative fliers. Their sentiment was epitomized by William Brock, who with Edward Schlee, attempted to circumnavigate the air over the earth four years ago.

"This," said Brock, "is without exception the greatest flight ever made."

To which Col. Lindbergh, who was on the field, added:
"The flight speaks for itself."

FRENCHMEN TO TRY
Paris, July 2—(UP)—Joseph Leblin announced today that he would start at 4 a. m. tomorrow on a flight around the world, hoping to beat the Post-Gatty record.

Leblin, who attained flying fame with Dieudonne Costes in the trans-Atlantic plane Question Mark, and other long distance flights, will be accompanied by Marcel Doret. He said he hopes to make a circle of the globe in four steps—Paris to Tokio, Tokio to San Francisco, San Francisco to New York and New York to Paris.

NEW YORK GAVE POST AND GATTY TYPICAL WELCOME

For the next hour the field was the scene of wild disorder. Hundreds fought with police and with one another in determined efforts to see and touch the world fliers. Three times Post and Gatty pretended to drive off the field for New York, but circled to momentary safety in a deserted hangar. Each time the crowd found them and the siege was renewed.

When the tired men at last did drive away to their first real night's sleep since their race around the world began there was no possible doubt in their minds that they were famous, but they knew also that fame exacts its price and that they no longer belonged to themselves but had been taken possession of by the adoring public.

Greeted With Shouts

The Winnie Mae shot out of the sunset on a gentle slant toward earth and a great shout went up from the field. At terrific speed Post shot over the crowd at about 600 feet, banked steeply, and executed three wide turns about the fields. Satisfied then that space was cleared for him he slipped off one wing, straightened out and dropped as lightly to the turf as though he were handling a little sport plane instead of a heavy long distance speedster.

"We had a great time," Post said wearily, and tried to smile.

Gatty who did the navigating while Post did all the flying, was not as near exhaustion as Post, and he told a little more of their experiences. They had plenty of bad weather, considerable blind flying, hard conditions of flight, but they came through all right and were glad to be home.

Post drank his twentieth glass of water and summed the whole story up as he saw it.

"We had a great time," he said, and that was the end of that.

What the pair will do after playing the leading roles in one of Manhattan's strenuous popular welcomes remains to be seen. Their backer F. C. Hall, said they might fly their famous plane around the country. And next year they might try a Pacific flight. The plane itself, Hall said, would be flown to the west coast for presentation to his daughter, Mrs. Winnie Mae Hall Fain, of Los Angeles, for whom it is named.

Had expressed himself as more than satisfied with the flight he financed to fulfill a wish expressed by his wife before she died last September.

INVITED TO CAPITAL

Washington, July 2—(AP)—The magic of a dizzying dash around the world opened White House doors to two quiet aviators who six weeks ago passed nearly unnoticed in Washington.

President Hoover, in dispatching congratulations to Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, included an invitation to a luncheon. The fliers' representatives accepted for Monday.

EXPLORATION OF GOBI DESERT IS BARRED BY CHINA

American Scientist Denied Permission To Conduct Search

BY D. C. BESS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Peiping, China, July 2—(UP)—Roy Chapman Andrews, widely known American scientist, was barred from conducting his proposed expedition into the Gobi desert by the Chinese authorities today.

In a communique explaining their attitude, the Chinese officials referred to Andrews' "arrogant attitude" and said he had been "excavating valuable scientific material from Chinese territory under cover of a passport for hunting."

The Andrews expedition had been organized and planned to start into the Mongolian desert area shortly.

The Chinese, however, have been making it increasingly difficult and the government's commission for the preservation of antiquities today published their correspondence refusing to permit Andrews to proceed. It said, in part:

"Co-operation is possible with mutual respect and appreciation. Your arrogant attitude alone is responsible if co-operation is made so difficult."

Andrews, in an interview with the United Press, commented:

"I returned to China in April hoping to arrange for the completion of our expedition, which is desirable to science. The Chinese commissioners declined even to grant an interview, a discourtesy which remains unexplained."

Andrews has conducted several expeditions into the Gobi desert under the auspices of the American Museum of Natural History. His discovery of the famous "dinosaur eggs" some years ago gained him international fame, and more recently his expedition discovered the "Peking man" in the ancient rock formations of the Gobi, which he believes science will prove was the cradle of civilization.

HEAD SOC LITTLE SCHOOL MA'AM

PEAK of your queens and empresses.
Of other ladies royal.
Not one of them has half the power.
Or subjects half so loyal
As she, the little school ma'am
Who trips along the way
To take the chair she makes a throne.
At nine o'clock each day.

Her rule is ever gentle,
Her tones are low and sweet,
She is very trim and tidy
From her head unto her feet.
And it matters very little
If her eyes be brown or blue;
They simply read your inmost heart
When ever she looks at you.

The children bring her presents,
Red apples, flowers galore,
For all the merry girls and boys
This queen of theirs adore—
The darling little school ma'am,
Who reigns without a peer
In a hundred thousand class rooms
This gayly flying year.

Meeting of Dixon Unit Home Bureau

A very interesting meeting of the Dixon Unit of Home Bureau was held at the pleasant home of Mrs. Harry Smyth on College avenue Thursday afternoon.

The meeting was called to order by the chairman, Mrs. Geo. Rosbrook.

The usual business was then attended to, followed by the lesson presented in a very capable manner by the local leader, Mrs. Smyth.

The day being very warm, games and recreations were not indulged in. However, members enjoyed a stroll through Mrs. Smyth's garden, which was very pretty and very well taken care of.

The hostess proved to be most charming and thoughtful of her guests.

The next meeting will be a picnic in the woods at the home of Mrs. Geo. Rosbrook, which will be held some time in July, the date will be announced later.

Lady June to Wed Mendes, Picture Man

Hollywood, Cal., July 2—(AP)—Lady June Inverlyde, the "June" of the English stage today proclaimed her intention of becoming the bride of Lothar Mendes, motion picture director, even at the risk of being classed as a bigamist in the country of her present husband.

The actress, who has established residence at Reno preparatory to filing suit for divorce charging extreme cruelty, said here last night the Nevada decree would not be recognized in England on this grounds. Unless Lord Inverlyde obtained an English divorce, she said, she would be liable to prosecution for bigamy if she married Mendes after the Reno divorce and then returned to England.

"I understand Lord Inverlyde has said he will never ask for a divorce," she said. "When I obtain one I shall wait a while before remarrying, still hopeful that he will file suit. Then, when I am certain he never will, I shall marry Mendes and renounce England."

Mendes, a German by birth, is former husband of Dorothy Mackaill, film actress.

Miss O'Brien's Pupils Gave Recital Tuesday Eve Sycamore

Miss E. Marie O'Brien who has many pupils who study vocal music under her instruction in Dixon, had a voice recital in Sycamore Tuesday evening by a class of pupils there. The Sycamore Tribune had the following to say of the enjoyable affair:

Miss Marie O'Brien of Chicago conducts a class in vocal music in Sycamore and DeKalb and Tuesday evening she presented her pupils in a delightful recital.

The recital was held at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Gochenour on West State street whose two daughters are pupils of Miss O'Brien's.

The program was opened by two solos sung by Floyd Edward Brower, "The Prayer Perfect" and "Duna." He was accompanied by his aunt, Mrs. Anna Brower Carlson. Floyd Edward's voice seems to be sweeter every time he sings than it was the time before. He was followed by Jane Ovitiz and Mary Lou Gochenour who sang a duet, with Miss O'Brien accompanying them. It was taken from Gounod's "Faust" and the girls sang it extremely well.

Mary Lou Gochenour then sang two solos "Wake Up" and "Salter's Chrysanthemum" which were very sweet.

Jane Ovitiz brought the memory of her grandmother, the late Mrs. Jennie Bryan Rogers—who possessed a voice which was considered the most beautiful in Sycamore for many years—to several of the older people who were present at the recital. Jane's voice is sweet and clear and promises to be as lovely as her grandmother's of such beloved memory here. Jane sang "Mother McCre" and "War's Mamma Song."

James Brower never sang better than he did Tuesday evening. His voice gained in volume and strength without losing any of its original beauty of tone. James sang "In Luxembourg Gardens" and "A Memory." He was also accompanied by his aunt, Mrs. Carlson. Miss O'Brien accompanied all her other pupils.

Mrs. Leslie Chatfield has long been one of Sycamore's most talented and popular vocalists and her voice was especially beautiful in and well adapted to the songs she sang Tuesday evening. They were "Ah Love But a Day" and "A June Morning."

The members of the DeKalb class who so delighted their hearers were Judge and Mrs. McGwen, Miss Margaret Ballou, Mrs. Henry Prentice and Mrs. Floyd Biengling.

Miss Ballou sang beautifully, "Sylvia" and "Gray Days." Mrs. Henry Prentice's rich contralto voice was lovely in "Thou Art to Me," "Were My Songs With Wings Provided" and "I heard a Lark Sing."

It was a privilege to hear Judge McGwen sing "Who Knows" and "If I But Knew." Mrs. McGwen also delighted the audience with her solos, "Oh! Rest in the Lord" from Elijah and "In the Time of Roses."

Mrs. Biengling has a wonderful lyric soprano voice which greatly pleased her listeners when she sang "Love and Music, These Have I Lived For," "Carra Selve" and "Scott's Lullaby."

Aside from the real talent Mrs. O'Brien's pupils displayed they show the most careful and painstaking training.

"Incurable Optimist" Married Six Times

Hollywood, Cal., July 2—(AP)—Only thirty years old and married six times Mrs. Euzenia Bankhead-Hoyt-Butt-Lee-White, says she is just an "incurable optimist" when it comes to matrimony.

She has returned here with her latest husband, Edward Ennis "Teddy" White, 34, New York broker, whom she wed a few days ago near Agua Caliente, lower California, Mexico. Mrs. White, daughter of Representative William B. Bankhead of Alabama, was married three times to Morton M. Hoyt.

"I really haven't been marrying just for pastime," she said last night. "Until now I simply have failed to find the right man. I am more firmly convinced at this time that I have found the right one. I have known Teddy for ten years."

She said there would not be another marriage "if this one fails." White has been married before.

Fewer Marriages Last Month Than In June of Former Year

Chicago, July 2—(UP)—Unemployment, the economic depression and the heat wave caused marriageable Americans to go to the altar in fewer numbers during the past month than in any other June on record, according to a nationwide survey completed by the United Press.

Cities and towns throughout the nation reported that marriage licenses issued during June just ended slumped from five to 25 per cent below 1930.

There were fewer June weddings in large industrial centers, agricultural communities and mining towns indicating that romantic young couples in all walks of life were affected equally by the depression.

H. H. Stubbendorf, marriage license clerk of Omaha, Neb., concurred with many other officials in saying that unemployment was the biggest factor in overcoming the romantic urgings of people who would like to be married in June.

"Marriages were nearly 20 per cent lower in Omaha during the last month than during 1930," said Mr. Stubbendorf, "and the decrease should have been even greater."

"Most of the couples who obtained licenses from me were in doubtful financial positions and had no business to get married. Nine out of ten couples gave their future addresses with one or the other's parents."

The average age of couples who obtained licenses to wed in many cities was higher than in 1930, the

Gloria Swanson Tired of Rumors

Paris—(UP)—"This is my first real holiday in 14 years," Gloria Swanson, movie star, said when she arrived here from America.

"I shall take a house here, with my children, and probably will run over to London for a few days to see my picture, 'Indiscreet.' Then I shall return to Paris to study until I go back to America."

With reference to her matrimonial intentions, Miss Swanson neither denied nor confirmed rumors of an approaching wedding. "People are always engaging or marrying me to someone. Isn't it dreadful not to be able to lead just a simple, peaceful, quiet life? I have stopped trying to argue about it one way or the other. You can do as you please about it. Just put down a Mr. X, and let it stand like that," she concluded.

She was dressed in the tailored outfit in which she is often seen in the movies, and in which she says she always feels best. She barely measures five feet by the yardstick and possesses the smallest feet in Hollywood.

Miss Swanson was born in Chicago 57 years ago. Her children are Gloria Somborn, by a former marriage, and Joseph, an adopted son. James Henri la Bally de la Palaise, Marquis de la Coudraye, of Vendee, France, was the third matrimonial partner. Her career began when she enlisted as an extra in the Es-

OUR ISOLATION POLICY.

Those who like to think that the Atlantic ocean still isolates America from Europe as effectively as it did in the days of sailing vessels must be finding it hard to understand the high significance of President Hoover's proposal for a year's moratorium on war debts and reparations.

As a matter of fact, this event—which probably will be what 1931 is remembered for in the history books of the next generation—ought to dispel the last shreds of belief in our "splendid isolation." The plain truth of the matter is that the future of Europe rests largely on what America does. When an American president, by a simple statement to the press, can check the probability of revolution in Germany and inspire all of Europe with a new hope, it is evident that American isolation is ended.

Just where has this isolation of ours gone, anyway?

Most historians say that it really ended with the war with Spain. By seizing the Philippines and setting Cuba free, the United States announced itself as a world power. Less than two decades later the country found itself engaged in a European war, sending troops 3000 miles overseas, maintaining a fleet in the North Sea, sending smaller squadrons to the Mediterranean and dispatching an army to Siberia. The transition had come rapidly.

Yet nobody willed it. It came inevitably. The industrial revolution, which made every nation at least partly dependent on every other, was largely responsible. So, too, were the new methods of travel and communication, which divided all old distances by ten and made messages move with the speed of thought. During the last half century the world became a hundred times more complex than it had been before; and it also shrank to a fraction of its former size. The policy of isolation, as a result, simply ceased to have any meaning—although we have not yet entirely realized it.

Today Americans are reading again about German reparations, war debts, the internal political currents of distant nations; and while we may find it unpleasant to be obliged to understand these things, we cannot escape the job. We have got to make ourselves realize that we are not isolated any longer; that the entire world is looking to us for leadership; and that our own welfare and the welfare of Europe are inextricably inter-related.

SPOILING THE MACHINERY.

As American engineers return from Russia and tell of conditions over there, one is led to wonder if the Communist regime may not eventually founder because of the fact that Russia does not have a large class of skilled mechanics.

Over and over again the returning engineers have remarked on the Russian workman's inability to get along with machinery. Complicated machines are allowed to run unlubricated. Workers who think they know more about mechanics than they do take machines to pieces and are unable to put them together again. Roller bearings wear out with abnormal speed.

Some observers predict that the five-year plan will collapse as soon as the foreign engineers leave. Whether or not it works out that way, it is clear that Russia labors under a tremendous handicap in trying to mechanize a country that had always been predominantly agricultural.

ASHTON NEWS

Ashton—Miss Guthrie of Dixon, accompanied by Mrs. Foster, attended the funeral services of the late Mrs. Charles Cross.

Miss Marguerite Wood, Mrs. Percy Cross, Mrs. Fred Hardesty and Mrs. Merle Tilton attended a training school for 4-H leaders at Oregon, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell of Rockford, will be guests at the Fred A. Hardesty home over Sunday.

The attendance at the Hardesty reunion on Sunday was cut by the extremely hot weather, there being less than a hundred, perhaps the fewest ever to attend the reunion.

The bountiful basket dinner at noon was accorded the same reception as in former years, lacking nothing in quality or quantity of its former excellence, with ice cream served in the afternoon in generous portions.

Among the guests were the families of the following: Frank Beaman, W. W. Cross, Merritt Cross, Dan Hardesty, J. C. Bemis, Percy Cross, Chas. Hardesty, E. S. Linscott, Leland Tilton, Clarence Dugdale, J. U. Lansing, Frank Tilton, Fred Tilton, W. M. Tilton, Henry Tilton, Fred Hardesty, James Hay, George Hardesty, Allen Walker, John Porter, Arthur Hayes, Mrs. Ethel Smith, Mrs. Viola Sanford, and Miss Elva Worthington.

Mrs. Charles Walkup will be hostess to the Pine Rock and Pine Creek clubs after home five miles from Oregon on Thursday when an address on Child Welfare will be given.

Lott Jenkins of Chicago is a guest of his daughter, Mrs. Leland Tilton. The members of the John Cain family had a reunion at Stillman Valley at Weld's Park, Sunday.

Mrs. Janet Dugdale was hostess to the members of the Nelson family of Chicago, over the week end.

The all absorbing topic of discussion these days is the hot weather. Prospects for oats have been reduced greatly by the intense heat, many forecasting that there will be much straw for a few light oats as a reward for their efforts. Some reports of damaged corn are being circulated and the labor in the hayfields seems almost beyond either that of man or horse.

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

ARRIVAL OF SUPPLIES

On July 2, 1917, the last units of the first American expedition, comprising vessels loaded with supplies and horses, reached France. Their coming, one week after the first troops landed, was greeted almost as warmly as the arrival of the troops themselves, because it meant success of the undertaking.

Rear Admiral Gleaves, from the bridge of his flagship, watched the successful conclusion of his plans and with characteristic modesty insisted upon giving most credit for the crossing to navigation officers of his command.

All units of the contingent had to keep a daily rendezvous with accompanying warships. Thanks to his navigation officers and despite overcast skies, which made astronomical observations impossible, each rendezvous, the admiral said, had been minutely and accurately kept by each unit.

This exactness on the part of the navigation officers was responsible in no small degree for the brilliant success of the entire undertaking.

National forests in the state of Nevada are the homes of 7,475 animals, according to a survey of forestry officials.

J. P. Miller, Hood River, Ore., farmer, raised a carrot that weighed 3½ pounds. It was 13 inches around and 14 long.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The men who paddled were real strong. Their boat just went skimming right along. The water was real quiet and the trip was quite a thrill. Said wee Scouty, "When we reach the spring, I really think the proper thing would be for us to help you with the big jugs you're going to fill."

One of the men said, "Good for you! That is just what we will let you do. The spring is such a pretty place you will like it very much. There you can drink of water clear and pure so there is no cause for fear. It comes from far down in the ground. It is chilly to the touch."

They reached the spring and all the Tinymites jumped out. Everyone thought it fun. "All right," exclaimed one of the fine young men. "Each person haul a jug. They look real heavy but they're not. Just roll them to the water spot. The Tinymites shortly found that they were rather hard to lug.

But soon the loading task was over and they were in the boat once more. The return trip was slower 'cause the little boat was heavy now. Real soon up to the shore it ran and there stood Mister Travel Man. The Tinymites thanked the kind boatmen and said "goodbye" with a low bow.

"I am hungry" shouted Clowny. "Gee, won't someone procure food for me?" "You bet," replied the Travel Man. "Come on, you little scamp. I'll take you where you'll get your fill of food and you can eat until you can't eat any more. We're going to a native camp."

They reached the camp and there they found a fire was burning on the ground. Across the blaze an iron rod stretched. Cried Copy, "This is real slick. Gee, isn't that a pretty sight. The odor brings an appetite. That is a great big chunk of meat that is hanging on that stick."

(The Tinymites hear some native music in the next story.)

Mellow, mild tobaccos that need no parching

ANY tobacco expert will tell you that parching would ruin the flavor of the choice Turkish and mellow Domestic tobaccos of which Camel cigarettes are blended.

Heating to that extent is an emergency measure resorted to only as an attempt to take part of the bite and burn and sting out of harsh, strong tobaccos.

We do everything to bring you Camels in factory-fresh condition, preserving for your enjoyment the natural moisture together with the rich, rare flavor and aroma of those choice tobaccos.

Tune in CAMEL QUARTER HOUR featuring Morton Downey and Tony Wons—Columbia Broadcasting System—every night except Sunday

That's why Camel smokers hold so persistently to Camels. They simply can't enjoy the stale, flat smoke from dried-out, moisture-robbd tobacco.

You see, every Camel package is now a humidior that excludes dust and germs and guarantees factory-fresh Camels to every smoker.

If you are not a Camel smoker, switch over for just one day. After you have discovered how mild, how cool they are to your throat, then leave them for stale hot smokes—if you can.

Don't remove the moisture-proof Cellophane from your package of Camels after you open it. The Humidor Pack is protection against sweat, dust and germs. It delivers fresh Camels and keeps them right until you smoke the last one

GERMANY'S ECONOMIC CRISIS

Frederick Kuh, United Press European Manager, Tells of Condition Which Prompted Hoover's Debt Holiday Proposal.

By FREDERICK KUH
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright, 1931, By United Press)
Berlin, July 2.—(UP)—Three billion American dollars were estimated today to be in peril in Germany if this nation fail to get the debt "breathing spell" envisaged by President Hoover's latest rescue mission.

This staggering sum represents investments America has made since the war. These have been largely in the last six or seven years or following the inflation when printing presses could not keep pace with the drop in the mark. It went from 42 to the dollar to 4.2 billion marks to the dollar before this slide ceased, and many a German shudders at the thought of any return to such a devastating situation. At present, the Reich bank has a proper gold "cover" for its marks. But the bank has been under tremendous pressure lately, while the drain of domestic demands and reparations has made such inroads on the financial structure of the Reich that President Hoover's call is regarded as an S. O. S. just ahead of the ship sinking.

The President is given credit for a deal of altruism in this effort at succor, yet hardheaded men in the Reich bank and the big "D" banks know that his nation stands to suffer along with Germany if his mission does not succeed.

Germany has been accused in the past by S. Parker Gilbert, former Reparations Agent General, of failing to put its house in order. He was here in the days when inflation wiped out most of the internal debt—taking its toll of holders of state bonds and similar investments. He saw money poured out by the government to aid the big industrialists. But since his day, there has been apparently a wholehearted effort to get the house in order, including curtailment of imports and increase in exports.

Nevertheless, the drain has been too great so that Germany today finds that domestic demands, chiefly, are sapping her financial strength.

From the Prussian landowners in the east, from the shipping men of the Elbe and the Weser, and from the industrialists in the drab Westphalian region come the same cry—hard time, poverty. And this cry has an answering echo in the worker tenements of Berlin, Saxony and the Ruhr.

American investments in Germany are estimated to include: $500,000,000 in short term credits; $1,500,000 in German bonds; and another $1,000,000,000 in stocks, industries, advances on merchandise and other forms.

An unending stream of doles and other allowances are being paid by the Reich. Unemployment, maintenance of a large federal employee list, social aid and pensions make huge demands. It is estimated the state, in one way or another, cares for more than 12,000,000 citizens.

Tax revenues have steadily declined while loan markets tightened, making it difficult for Germany to obtain new credits.

In line with "setting its house in order," the government budget for 1931 was 1,000,000,000 marks below the 1930 budget. President Hindenburg by his June 30 decree slashed outlays of 300,000,000 marks and imposed 713,000,000 marks in the new taxes. This drastic move was designed to avoid a breakdown of the budget which in April seemed to balance.

President Hoover's action was taken just in time to help the Reich bank weather a terrific storm. The bank has kept its gold reserve at 60 per cent, but due to a "run" on June on its foreign currency and the withdrawal of foreign credit, the cover the day before Mr. Hoover acted was down to 40 per cent, the legal minimum.

There was during June a veritable "kaputtflucht"—flight of capital—such as Germany knew in the days of the mark inflation.

Short term credits were called, and it is estimated 1,200,000,000 marks were pulled out of Germany within a few days largely by British and American bankers. The American President's call for a debt holiday halted this run.

There has been since January a marked drop in banks' holdings of short term credits for industrial finance, and a corresponding drop in the market value of shares, but an upturn was noted after the U. S. action.

Meantime from the "gutsbestitzer"—the landlords of Prussia—arises a wall that, even with abnormally high tariffs, they are suffering an unprecedented depression.

loans are ever repaid. In fact, it is whispered that the advances are tantamount to a subsidy to the Prussian owners to keep them friendly to the republic.

Grain imports have been materially curtailed, but the farmers failed to benefit by the last big tariff increase in March, 1931, because their crops were already sold. They hope, however, to reap a profit henceforth, as the tariff will benefit them, the crops of grain, vegetables, fruit are large, and the needs for foreign grains will be small.

Meanwhile the shipping situation is in a distressed state. Germany's pre war fleet was 5,239,000 gross tons. War time sinkings and surrenders under the peace treaty brought this to 672,000 tons. Since that time the shipyards along the northern coast have been busy, so that today the German merchant marine with 4,500,000 tons is close to its prewar status. These ships are the last word in economical operation.

But, the earnings the fleet was making two years ago are markedly curtailed now, for practically one-sixth of the ships are idle to the general slump in world trade.

These things give the German a sense of despair and futility, but the nation now is hailing President Hoover as a savior as it 13 years ago sang the praises of the peacemaker, Woodrow Wilson.

Hamilton, Ont., July 1.—(UP)—Five persons were killed when an airplane lost a wing and crashed on the Hamilton airport here today.

The dead were:

J. H. Maher, Montreal, owner of the plane; Capt. Fred Sterling, Montreal; pilot; A. Fred Rogers, Montreal; Charles Daly, Toronto; and H. Raines, a Canadian press correspondent who came here to cover the start of the trans-Canada air pageant.

FAMOUS FLIERS ENTER ANNUAL NATIONAL TOUR

Junior Pilot and Woman Aviator to Battle For Honors

Detroit, July 2.—(UP)—Many nationally and internationally famous fliers will compete in the 1931 National Air Tour, starting here July 4 and ending July 25.

Eddie Schneider, 19-year-old boy pilot, former holder of the Junior Transcontinental flight record; Mrs. Mae Hazlip, and Lowell R. Bayles, who placed second in the All-American Flying Derby last summer, are among recent entries.

Mrs. Hazlip holds the distinction of being the first woman entered in the 1931 tour. She will pilot her Buell Bull Pup around the 6,500-mile course.

Women Pilots

"Although women pilots have been vying for the Edsel B. Ford reliability trophy ever since 1928," said Ray Collins, tour manager, "Mrs. Hazlip, who completed for it originally in 1929, is the first to tackle the job for a second time. Her pluck deserves reward and we sincerely hope she makes a good showing."

Besides Bayles, two other All-American Derby contestants have entered. They are Lieut. Lee Gehlbach, former Selfridge field airman, and Harvey Mummert, veteran pilot for the Mercury Aircraft Corporation, Hammondsport, L. I.

Gehlbach, with Lieut. Leonard Flo, ex-army flier, and Capt. William Lamaster, noted Australian pilot, will comprise the team entered by the Bird Aircraft Corporation of Brooklyn.

Doolittle Referee

Major Jimmie Doolittle, former army ace; Capt. Frank M. Hawks, America's aerial speed demon; Walter Lees, co-holder of the recent non-refueling endurance flight record, set with a Packard Diesel equipped Bellanca, and E. W. (Pop) Cleveland, one of the industries' pioneers, are also listed in the tour personnel.

Doolittle is the tour's referee; Lees, the chief timer, and Cleveland the chief starter.

Leaving Detroit, the tour, numbering approximately 30 planes, will journey through Canada to New York state, thence southwestward over Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana to Texas. From Texas the contestants will fly northward, visiting the states of Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan.

S. W. MITCHELL, EDITOR OF THE FORT MADISON (IOWA) DEMOCRAT, SAYS:

THAT the merchant who forges ahead is the one who quits thinking destructively about his competitor's business and starts thinking constructively about his own business. If one's competitor hurts him any it is his own fault. There must be some weak places in one's business bulwark or the darts of the competitor would never find a place to enter.

There never was a time when there was so much genuine thinking required in the business world as today, although there are indications that the need along this line is far from met. There are hundreds of so-called merchants who still measure their every move from the standpoint of their competitors. They do nothing as the result of original thinking. They do not look ahead. As a result they never get ahead.

One good way to get even and keep even with one's competitor is to forget him and devote so much genuine thinking to one's own business that the competitor is the one who starts worrying. The business man's primary purpose and object should be to constantly add to the service he is rendering the public. If he does that he will be too busy to be thinking about others engaged in the same line of business.

The business man who devotes his time to thinking about his competitor is not entitled to support from the community he is supposed to serve. He has the wrong viewpoint. His headlight is focused backwards.

U. S. Consulate In Berlin Is Stoned

Berlin, July 1.—(UP)—A band of rowdies stoned the United States Consulate at midnight last night, smashing a glass door and one window.

Four out of the gang of 20 were arrested. They denied they had participated in the attack. The others fled.

Police said they thought the demonstration was staged by Communists in protest against the impending execution of eight Negroes in Alabama for an attack on a white girl.

The Consulate asked additional police protection.

BROTHERS TO APPEAL

Chicago, July 1.—(AP)—A bill of exceptions in the case of Leo V. Brothers, St. Louis gunman convicted of the murder of the Chicago Tribune reporter, Alfred Lingke, was filed with Judge Joseph Sabath today preliminary to an appeal to the state Supreme Court by his attorneys.

PRESIDENT ZAMORA

A Nation At The Cross Roads Of History—

SPAIN TODAY

By MILTON BRONNER

Copyright, 1931, NEA Service, Inc.

EX-KING ALFONSO

EDITOR'S NOTE: Events of tremendous importance are approaching in Spain as one of the world's oldest monarchies now, after the revolution that overthrew King Alfonso and his line, tackles the task of building a republic similar to either that of the United States or France. Accordingly, NEA Service and The Telegraph sent Milton Bronner, NEA's European manager, from London to Spain for a series of exclusive stories on this momentous situation, the first of which appears herewith.

By MILTON BRONNER

European Manager, NEA Service, Madrid. —(NEA Service)—The chief issue confronting Spain today as this ancient nation stands at the crossroads of history after a revolution that overthrew a king and substituted a president is the question: Shall Spain have a centralized republic like France or a federated republic like the United States.

When the Constituent Assembly convenes in Madrid on July 14, to draw up a constitution and build a republican form of government from the ground up to replace the ancient monarchy, this question will probably cause most of the debate.

The French system has many admirers. Many leading politicians advocate a copy of it, with all power centralized to the capital and all the threads of government firmly held in a few hands.

But the American system has many admirers too, and it is quite possible that it is the American system that will be copied.

Spain contains a number of strong provincial movements. Chief among these are the Catalonians. For many years the four provinces that make up Catalonia have been calling for autonomy. When the monarchy was overthrown recently and Provisional President Zamora installed in Madrid, the Catalonians promptly set up a republic of their own, forming a provisional government headed by Colonel Francisco Macia.

Later, to be sure, the name was changed from "republic" to "generalitat." But Catalonians, who have a language and a history all their own, have always objected to being governed from Madrid.

Colonel Macia recently told me that delegates to a Catalan assembly have already been elected. These men will draft a constitution for Catalonia, "showing," as Colonel Macia said, "how we propose to work out our government within the frame of the Spanish republic."

He added: "We want power to make our own laws through our own local legislative assembly. We want power to levy and spend our own taxes for our own purposes. We want the ancient Catalan law applied in our courts in Catalan cases, and we want this taken cognizance of in the Supreme Court of the Spanish republic."

Nor are the Catalans the only group that seeks autonomy.

The Basques, another distinct race within the republic, have the same ends in view. One of their leaders, the gray-haired newspaper editor, Celestino de Uribe Echebarria, told me he has great admiration for the American federal system.

Praises U. S. Constitution "The more I study the American Constitution, the more I think something of the kind can be worked out in Spain," he said.

"When I examine your 48 individual states, I find that in many respects each is a self-governing, autonomous republic. The people elect their own officials, pass their own laws, have their own courts, and vote and spend their own taxes, no part of which goes to the federal government."

"The United States plan seems to meet our case exactly. Suppose we formed a Spanish federal republic, composed of a number of individual states. That would meet the desires of the Catalans, the Basques, the Galicians and the other groups."

Spain today is a haven for Spaniards all over Europe, who left during the days of the monarchy and who now want to come back home. In France, especially, there are thousands of Spanish workmen, who emigrated because jobs were more plentiful and wages were higher in France, but who now are besieging the consular offices in the big cities trying to get passports to get back into the mother country.

Their presence raises many problems for the consuls. Most of the emigrants, of course, are desirable citizens; but among them are criminals, political exiles and Communist agitators, who see in the confusion caused by the revolution a chance to stir up new trouble if they can only get back into Spain.

The consuls, naturally, are doing their best to weed such people out, and an applicant for a passport to Spain is apt to be scrutinized pretty carefully.

Jews May Return

Much more interesting, however, is the question of the return of the Jews.

In 1492, the year that Columbus discovered America, Spain expelled the Jews. There was a great exodus, and in all cities of Europe there are some colonies of Spanish Jews who have lived there for centuries but who, in most cases, have never ceased to think of Spain as their homeland.

Today one hears an increasing amount of agitation to have the expulsion laws of 1492 repealed. Leading this agitation is the newspaper La Libertad, one of the leading papers of Spain. It is quite within the possibilities that the historic anti-Jewish policy will be reversed early in the career of the Spanish republic.

An interesting point is that La Libertad is not conducted or financed by Jews and yet its director, Senor Joaquin Aznar, is leading the fight for Jewish liberty.

"He who knows his Spanish history," says Senor Aznar, "knows that at one dark period in the history of Europe the light of learning was upheld by the Arabs and Jews then living in Spain. This was especially true of algebra, medicine and the sciences."

Expelled in 1492, those Spanish Jews who refused to become converted to Christianity were persecuted and some were burned at the stake. The Jews who stuck to their faith fled the country. Those who became converted were known as Maranos, because it was suspected that they practiced the cult of their ancestors in secret. But by and by these families became really Christianized. The result is that a considerable number of the most prominent families in Spain have Jewish blood in them.

It is generally believed Spain is a country without Jews, but as a matter of fact there are probably 300 or 500 families in Madrid, Barcelona and Seville. They have their synagogues but religious worship has been practiced in silence as no other faith but the state religion was allowed under the monarchy.

If there are many who wish to enter Spain, there are also some who wish to leave. These are chiefly the members of the nobility; the proud dons and hidalgos and caballeros who had a good thing under the monarchy. They owned vast estates which they drained of their riches, and most of them have been trying to get in France since the republic was established.

The new republic is willing to let them go, but it refuses to let them take their cash with them, fearing that the country's financial structure would suffer. So every so often, some haughty count or other is halted at the border, stripped of his concealed valuables, and tossed into the lockup. Republican Spain has small respect for its nobility.

On the eve of the constitutional convention which convenes July 14 to frame a new government for the nation, Madrid and Barcelona, the two leading cities are as peaceful and orderly as if the epoch-making revolution which overthrew King Alfonso and substituted a republic had never touched them.

Tourists from America and from other countries in Europe have been giving Spain a wide berth this summer. In London and Paris, when you go to a travel bureau, you find that you can get sleeping car reservations without trouble. Hotel reservations in Spain are equally easy.

Visitors are staying away very foolishly.

Madrid, the capital of a nation that just now stands in an uncertain mood at the crossroads of history, seems to be conducting itself exactly as it always did. The shops in the Alcala and the Gran Via—the Broadway and Fifth avenue of the capital—are ablaze with lights and crowded with shoppers. The top of the telephone building, the only real skyscraper in Europe, is a glow of illumination at night. The streets are alive with people. Taxis and street cars are busy. The restaurants are full, and the sidewalk cafes seem to be doing as good a business as ever.

Crowds Are Peaceful

In the Puerta del Sol, the famous central square from which nine streets radiate, where the republic was proclaimed and where an angry mob recently nearly lynched a misguided royalist who stood up to cheer for ex-King Alfonso, things are going on as usual. The same dense crowds swirl about; the same brownfaced beggar women ask for alms; the same sleepy little news-girls cry their papers; the same fat women offer lottery tickets for sale, and the same billboards display big colored posters advertising forthcoming bull fights.

Only one thing serves to remind the visitor of the revolution. Here and there one comes across the charred ruins of a church. And in front of every church, monastery or monastery a big policeman can be found, unobtrusively loitering in the doorway. On the wall's there still remain fragments of the proclamations which the mayor put up calling on the "noble-hearted" Madrilenos to refrain from riot and destruction. A newspaper correspondent, to be sure, notices one thing more. The press is no longer censored. Newspapers no longer carry "This paper has been censored" in a "box" on the first pages.

Otherwise, Republican Madrid still looks and acts just as Royalist Madrid looked and acted.

Much the same is true of Barcelona. Barcelona, the great industrial metropolis, misses its tourists even more than Madrid does; for Barcelona has always had the reputation of being the home of hot-headed bomb throwers, and the visitors are not coming near the place. But there is today no more peaceful large city in all Europe.

Barcelona Escapes Burnings

Barcelona, being the city of the Catalans, who have been "agin the government" in Spain for a century, is very proud of the peaceful way in which it played its part in the revolution. It even escaped the orgy of church-burning that swept the rest of Spain—possibly because President Macia of Catalonia foresaw the chances of great trouble and put armed guards in and about religious edifices when the revolution came.

In only one way have the people of Barcelona made visible display of their rejoicing over the downfall of the monarchy. Tobacco in Spain is a government monopoly, and all tobacco shops formerly bore the royal colors over their doors. In recent weeks the painters have been busy all over Barcelona painting out these colors and substituting the red, yellow and purple of the republic. And the Boulevard King Alfonso XIII has been renamed the Boulevard of April 14—the day the revolution broke.

Tobacco Bootlegged

Barcelona, in many ways, is like an American city. It has American traffic regulations, American apartment houses—and bootleggers. They sell, not booze, but cigarettes; and many a Barcelona businessman gets a call once a week from his bootlegger, who leaves in his office, not a case of liquor, but a carton of smuggled cigarettes. The government brand is both expensive and poor smoking.

The new republican movement manifests itself in many ways, but quietly in all. Street peddlers sell "patriotic" neckties of flaming red, yellow and purple—these being the new national colors, having supplanted the old red and yellow of the monarchy that was overthrown when President Zamora became the nation's provisional ruler.

Another touch is that the people are preparing to erect a memorial to Pirmin Galan and Barcia Hernandez, the young army officers who started the revolution in the regiments of Jaca and were shot after a drumhead court-martial. Today the newspapers carry the list of subscribers to this fund. The people who are permitting their names to appear thus publicly are apparently sure that the republic is going to last and that King Alfonso will not return. Otherwise, they would not dare.

NEXT: The three next interesting men in Spain today—two politicians and a famous aviator. Mr. Bronner interviews Provisional President Zamora, Colonel Macia of Catalonia and Major Franco, Spain's flying "man of mystery."

Daily Health Talk

ECZEMA

Eczeema, one of the most common of the skin affections, is not a single disease condition, but rather a conglomerate one.

Failure to appreciate how complicated a condition eczeema is and how much detailed study and varied trials are required to achieve effective treatment causes many a patient to wander from doctor to doctor and from clinic to clinic in the vain hope that someone will hit the right treatment on the first trial.

The term eczeema is used to describe a variety of skin conditions which run from the mildly inflamed and fairly dry skin to the markedly ulcerated and "weeping" skin. Though the causes of eczeema are numerous, they can be divided into two general groups, the so-called external causes and the internal ones.

There are some eczemas which are due purely to some external irritants. We find these most commonly among industrial workers as the result of chemicals and other irritating substances which they are obliged to handle.

The eczemas due to internal causes appear as well influenced by outside agencies of forces. The eczematous areas are usually developed where the skin is irritated.

The treatment of eczeema of external origin requires the removal of the irritating cause. These may in some instances be vegetable parasites, in others some chemical substance to which the sufferer is peculiarly sensitive.

The eczemas of internal origin require detailed study of the patient's constitution and habits as well as of the external causes which contribute to the development of the condition.

All of this requires acute medical skill and perseverance. Self-medication for eczeema is at best a waste of time and money and may lead to further injury of an already suffering skin.

Tomorrow—Treating Eczeema.

MME. PADEREWSKI ILL

Morges, Switzerland, July 1—(AP)—The condition of Mme. Paderewski, wife of the pianist, was pronounced very grave by the family physician, Dr. Raoul Machon today. He advised the pianist that his departing for Poland to attend the unveiling of a statue to Woodrow Wilson would be inopportune.

DR. ELLIOTT IS STILL PLAYING THE DARN FLUTE

Chicago Mystery Is Solved But The Flute Playing Goes On

Chicago, July 2—(UP)—For days and days, wealthy residents on East Delaware street in Chicago's exclusive "gold coast" district had listened to somebody playing a flute.

Occupants of nine-room apartments which rent for thousands of dollars yearly went to sleep each night with the piping sound of a flute in their ears. They awakened each morning to the tune of "Yankee Doodle," "Turkey in the Straw," or "America."

Things came to such a pass that this notice appeared in the want ad section of a newspaper:

"Will the flute player in the 209 East Delaware block kindly cease and oblige neighbors."

But the music did not stop. The harassed neighbors went out to find the player, and perhaps offer him bribes, but find him they could not. The music seemed to come from the exact center of a group of three tall apartment hotels. The tunes seemed to float about the entire neighborhood, but none could discover from where they came.

It was almost unanimously agreed that the player was a boy with only a slight musical education. Opera singers and other musicians in the neighborhood protested to their landlords because the player went so far as to attempt classical music.

A girl newspaper reporter was assigned to the job of identifying the mysterious player. All afternoon she wandered up and down the corridors of the three apartment buildings.

Finally she paused before the door of an apartment and became convinced that the sounds emanated from there. She knocked on the door and a maid answered.

"Who lives here?" the girl reporter asked.

"This apartment," the maid replied, "is occupied by Dr. Arthur R. Elliott. He is president of the Chicago Society of Medicine and a Professor of Medicine at Rush Medical College."

"And besides that, he's 62 years old and if he wants to play a flute it's his own business."

The door slammed and the flute playing continued, uninterrupted.

Criminal Career Of Boy, 14, Is Ended

Chicago, July 1—(UP)—Fourteen-year-old Michael Gillico's criminal career ended today in a hospital when he was wounded after holding up a restaurant.

Gillico, Joseph Stephano, 17, and two companions, robbed Bert Marucci, restaurant owner, of $75 early today. As they were fleeing, they ran into a police squad, which opened fire.

Gillico was wounded and surrendered. Stephano was captured. The other two escaped after a running pistol battle. Police believed one of them was wounded also.

KILLED GIRL AND SELF
Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., July 1—(AP)—Believed to have been maddened by jealousy, Harold Blade, 22, of near Pickford, last night called Olive Atkins, 22, from a car in which she was riding with friends shot her three times and then turned the gun on himself. Both died within a few minutes.

A 56 pound beaver was trapped by Arthur Lacey, Parker, Ore.

Independence Of U. S. Was Voted On July Second, 1776

July 2, has been neglected as an anniversary date of importance by the American people; yet it is one of the most significant dates of our history. For it was on July 2, and not July 4, 1776, that American independence was really voted by the Continental Congress then in session.

The United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission calls the attention of the Nation to this fact and suggests that, when the people throughout the land celebrate Independence Day in 1932, during the Celebration of the Two Hundredth Anniversary of the Birth of George Washington, July 2 as well as July 4, be recognized in the merry-making and thanksgiving which the anniversary of that great document brings forth.

The story of how independence was voted is here briefly told. Before 1775, independence was not thought of by most of the American leaders or by the American public at large. The colonists were interested in righting the wrongs inflicted by the British but not in breaking away completely from the mother country. Several attempts at conciliation were made, all without result. But many of the Colonists were still anxious to close the breach rather than widen it. As late as January, 1776, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Maryland instructed their members in Congress to vote against independence.

As the months went on, led by the more radical colonial statesmen, the demand for independence began to crystallize. Soon it became the goal. Complete independence from England was to be the reward for American sacrifices!

January 1776 brought to Congress news of the burning of Norfolk, Virginia, by the order of Lord Dunmore. About that time Thomas Paine's "Common Sense" stirred the Colonists to fever pitch. Also, reports reached Philadelphia in May that England was hiring Hessians to coerce the Colonies. There was also the stigma of being proclaimed "rebels" and treated as such. All these events and conditions had their effect in arousing public opinion to the point of demanding independence.

George Washington, at the head of the Continental forces was urging the Colonists to declare independence. He thought that the time for parleying and compromises was past. Complete severance and independence from the mother country, he thought, would help bring the struggle to a successful end.

On June 7, 1776, Richard Henry Lee introduced in Congress three famous resolutions. The first of these declared the United Colonies free and independent States, one of the most momentous resolutions ever introduced in Congress.

Lee's resolution was tabled for the time being but Congress created a committee, with Thomas Jefferson at its head, to draw up a declaration of independence. Lee's resolution for independence was brought up in the Congress for debate on July 1. On the next day, July 2, 1776, the vote was taken and it showed twelve states in favor of independence, New York not voting.

It was, therefore, on July 2, 1776 that independence was really declared. Thomas Jefferson's declaration of independence was then taken up, and, after several changes were made, by the order of Lord Dunmore, we know it was adopted by Congress on July 4, 1776.

The suggestion of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission that July 2, as well as July 4, be celebrated is a good one. Let the nation prepare to have a three day celebration next year instead of the usual one day event. It will be particularly appropriate during the year when the man who made the Declaration of Independence a reality is being honored on the Two Hundredth Anniversary of his Birth.

In a day the average farmer walks 26 miles, a letter carrier 22, policemen 14, boys 16, girls 11, housewives 8 and train conductors, 7 it has been estimated.

Retired "Rail" Devoted Time To Making Of Violins

Harvard, Ill., July 2 —(UP)— Dan Waters, 70-year-old engine foreman with 53 years of service here with the Chicago & Northwestern Railway, laid aside his overalls today to devote full time to his hobby—violin making.

In his basement workshop, where during the last 40 years Dan has made 191 violins, he will forget the music of the locomotive whistles as he tests the tones of his instruments.

His daughter was the cause of it all. Forty years ago Dan was a good Harvard fiddler, winning most of the contests he entered. When his oldest daughter, now Mrs. J. C. Irveson of Harvard, began to play the violin, Dan decided the tone of the instrument he had provided for her was bad.

"I can make a better violin than that myself," said Dan. And he did. Spurred on by his first success, he ordered the text books of Antonius Stradivarius, leading violin-maker of all time, and of Pelleri Guarnierius and the three Amatis, all noted masters. Dan studied diligently, after his daily shift in the railroad yards, the art of carving, tone quality and the use of woods and varnishes.

How well he succeeded is demonstrated by the fact that his violins are scattered all over the United States, cherished by their owners as the best in the country.

Dan's only thought when he starts on a new violin is that it shall be better than the last. He spends hours in his workshop testing the tone, refitting the backs and fronts and adding a little extra carving on the scroll. His workshop is simple but complete, containing a full complement of knives, forms and lathes. His patience is unlimited. Often he works for months on one instrument and he never completes more than four or five a year.

Dan, not only makes violins well, he also knows how to play them, and there isn't a player in the north Illinois district who hasn't bowed to his skill in old fiddlers' contests. He plays furiously, both by ear and by note, scowling deeply; but he grins when he is through.

Dan plans a trip to Ireland next fall to see his parents' native land. He also plans to run over to Germany to visit the shop of Wilhelm Daurtschmidt, through whom he orders all his supplies including the maple and spruce wood of the Swiss Alps, the best wood for violin making.

More than $3,500,000 has been spent by Illinois' unemployment relief commission, and there is more than $1,000,000 to continue the work this summer.

Judges decision in his first heavy-weight fight. His opponent was King Levinsky, a scrappy west-side Chicago mauler.
 Hudkins weighed 171 pounds and Levinsky 186. Some 6,500 persons paid $10,000 to promoter Jim Mullen for the privilege of seeing the Nebraska stage his comeback. It was Hudkins' first appearance in a Chicago ring since he tried unsuccessfully to lift the middleweight crown from Mickey Walker in 1928.
 The fighting was terrific and twice—in the fourth and fifth rounds—Hudkins sent Levinsky to the floor for counts of nine. The Chicagoan was credited with only two rounds, the second and ninth.

SMALL SERVICE FEE PLANNED FOR JOB BUREAU

Nominal Charge in Interest of Economic Conditions, Expert Declares

BY GENE GILLETTE
 (United Press Staff Correspondent)
 Des Moines, July 2—(UP)—It is in the interest of sound economic conditions in America that employment bureau service should be provided at nominal charges, according to Hans C. Pfund, secretary of the Des Moines community employment bureau.

Such service would be possible under a system of community-operated employment bureaus similar to the Des Moines organization and extending throughout the nation, the expert said.

Every city of 100,000 or more should have a community employment bureau, Pfund said. Experience in Des Moines has shown that support for organization of such a service can be obtained from business leaders, Pfund related, and in time he envisioned a bureau that would be supported by the revenue from bequests.

Many business men, when they have seen the type of work accomplished by the community bureau, will bequeath a portion of their estate toward its support, Pfund said. Such bequests constantly will reduce the rates required of laborers without employment until ultimately the fee charged will be purely nominal.

In addition to supplying vocational guidance, a record of jobs held by workers, and low cost service, the community employment bureau is strictly neutral.

In the nation-wide system of community bureaus that he envisions, Pfund said religious, or fraternal affiliations, will be neither a detriment nor an advantage to the man without a job.

Only in cases where employers specifically designate that the employee be of a certain religious faith or lodge affiliation will such matters be given consideration.

Pfund expects the system he proposes will be years in development, but the success that has been obtained here leads him to predict its eventual completion.

Officials Of Gary Charged With Fraud

Crown Point, Ind., July 1—(UP)—Seven business men and two Lake county officials were under indictment today after a grand jury investigation into gambling and asserted irregularities in contracts for public work.

The officials indicted are James Black and William Linton, County Commissioners. With Eugene Carpenter and Ross Smith, they were charged with irregularities in awarding contracts and obtaining fees.

Five businessmen of Gary were charged with renting property for the expressed purpose of operating gambling resorts. They are Dr. Carl Boardman, John B. Burke and Adolph Deutsch, hotel owners, and Leslie R. Bain and D. S. Fruse, Real estate dealers.

The Commissioners were charged with negligently paying $80,000 to Smith, who is head of the Hammond Inspection Company, as fees for inspecting road materials used by the county. Smith is accused of filing false claims for fees and accepting $80,000 for work which cost only $1,700.

Another of the indictments charged Carpenter with perjury in connection with an allegedly false affidavit which he filed with a bid for supplying furniture for the County Treasurer's office.

Hot weather always brings scores of new friends to Super-Penn Motor Oil. For summer heat, more than anything else, quickly demonstrates the superior heat-resisting qualities of this fine Pennsylvania oil. Starting with 100% Pure Pennsylvania crude, Super-Penn is put through an extra refining process which eliminates the non-lubricating substances found in ordinary oils. These fractions, devoid of lubricating qualities, are the first to "break down" under motor heat, causing the oil to "lose body" and "burn up." Super-Penn is all lubrication when it enters your motor; it remains so for many extra miles under terrific engine heat. Play safe this summer—use Super-Penn.

AMERICAN SLAPS DUKE'S FACE TO AVENGE INSULT

And Refuses To Settle Argument On Field Of Honor Later

London, July 2—(AP)—A story that an American commercial attaché boxed the ears of a Hungarian Duke over a fancied insult but refused to settle the argument on the field of honor was related by the Daily Express today.

William A. Hodgman, attached to the legation at Budapest, recently was entertaining guests in the restaurant of the Polo grounds there, dispatches said, when Duke Heinrich Borwin of Mecklenburg-Schwerin passed remarks concerning members of his party.

Hodgman was said to have retaliated with a stinging slap to the Duke's head. The Duke thereupon challenged him to a duel but Hodgman declined to carry the incident further. He left shortly after for America on leave of absence but the occurrence created a hubbub in diplomatic circles.

The American is a native of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., and a graduate of the United States Naval Academy, having retired in 1930 with the rank of Lieutenant Commander. He is 47. The Duke, a visitor to America before the war, married the Countess de Gasquet-James, formerly Miss Elizabeth T. Pratt, of Prattville, N. Y., in 1911 and had the marriage annulled two years later on the grounds it was contracted without the consent of his guardian. He was 27 at the time and his wife was 55.

Uncle Sam Billion Short, Books Show

Washington, July 2—(AP)—Uncle Sam set out today to pull himself out of his worst financial hole since the war.

A check of his books July 1 showed he lacked just about a billion dollars of coming out even for the past 12 months. A statement by Acting Secretary Mills of the Treasury, blamed the $903,000,000 deficit largely upon increased expenditures for agricultural aid and relief, additional benefits to war veterans, accelerated governmental construction activities and upon a severe decline in taxes, particularly income, Customs and internal revenue receipts, important sources of government funds, also fell off.

Ordinary receipts during the fiscal year 1931 totaled $3,317,000,000 and expenditures $4,220,000,000. Receipts were nearly a billion dollars smaller than in 1930, Mills said, and expenditures two and a quarter billion greater.

Heart of Liane

by MABEL McELLIOTT
©1931 by NEA SERVICE INC. NEA PICTON

BEGIN HERE TODAY

LIANE BARRETT, 18, is beautiful, lives in a cramped New York apartment with her mother, CASS BARRETT, a rather faded actress. On a hot night Liane goes to dinner with MOLLY CRONIN, a neighbor, and two of Molly's men friends. There is a shooting and the girl is held as a witness. She sends word to her mother who arrives and persuades SHANE McDERMID, the young policeman in charge, that Liane is innocent of wrongdoing. That night at the theater where Cass is playing Liane encounters a handsome stranger who speaks her name. A few days later Cass and Liane go to Willow Stream, L. I., where Cass has an engagement in a small summer theater sponsored by the wealthy MRS. CLEESPAUGH. Liane works in the box office, sharing duties with MURIEL LADD, pretty society girl. ELSIE MINTER, ingenue, introduces Liane to CLIVE CLEESPAUGH, son of the theater patron. Shane McDermid comes to tell Liane the man wounded in the gun fire will recover.

At Muriel Ladd's home Liane again meets the handsome stranger who spoke to her in the theater. He is VAN ROHARD and when Cass hears his name she makes Liane promise to have nothing more to do with him. Liane agrees with reluctance. Mrs. Cleespaugh asks Cass to let Liane stay with her during the winter. Muriel leaves the theater one evening with CHUCK DESMOND, newspaper man and Mrs. Ladd's beau. Believing the two have eloped, asks Rohard to find them. Van enlists Liane's aid. He makes love to Liane, but later the girl is crushed when Elsie tells her Rohard is said to be Mrs. Ladd's lover.

Muriel telephones next morning from a New York hotel where she has spent the night discreetly. Liane tries to forget Van Rohard. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VIII

THE visiting star that week was Curtis Blue, 35, blond, with eyes of so deep a color they seemed almost the "violet eyes" of Victorian novels. He was of the matinee idol tribe and professed to hate it. He had a wife somewhere in Hollywood, a feverish, dark, young woman who was teaching the Mayfair accent to Queenie Whitebait, the comedy star.

"Isn't he a lamb?" asked Muriel the day of his arrival.

"He's rather nice. Mother played with him in 'Cabages and Kings'. Liane returned indifferently.

"You knew him before, then? Why, you sly piece!" And Muriel pretended to see something that was not there.

Blue came along, perfectly groomed in his dark gray coat and striped trousers, his beautifully curved soft gray hat. His bow was a miracle of precision. He stopped with a side glance for the luscious Miss Ladd in her apple green sports shirt and shorts, her brown legs shapely and seductively bare.

Liane performed introductions and Muriel cooed at him. "I enjoyed your performance so much!" He looked as modest as possible.

"I thought you had threatened to break into the company this season," he said to Liane.

"You wretch," she pouted. "When I asked your advice last winter you said not to go on the stage whatever else I did. You told me I was an awkward cub, that I needed to learn to talk and walk and smile properly. You told me I said 'gonna'."

"Well, so you did," he returned, flashing his justly famous smile at her. "But you've improved. You might learn. Who can tell?"

Liane threw out her hands in despair. "How is a poor girl to know when you say 'no'?" she bewitched. "Oh, you'll marry within the year and settle down to have a flock of babies," Blue drawled. "Maybe it's the best way, I don't know."

"No, I shan't! How horrid of you!" she flamed. Muriel interposed, dulcet-toned. "How about me,

"Liane hastily slipped into her one presentable frock."

Mr. Blue? Would you say I had a chance?"

HE favored her with an eye half insolent, half honestly appraising. "The chorus for you," he said with coolness. "You've the looks, the verve. That is, if you can dance. It doesn't matter whether you sing or not and you can speak like a macaw for all they care."

Muriel pouted. "You're very flattering, I must say."

"So I did. Come along and have a cocktail with me to prove you didn't mean to hurt my feelings."

He glanced at his watch. "Five o'clock. How far is it? I've got to be back at the inn by six. Must have an early dinner or I'm all wrong for the evening performance."

Muriel said airily. "I'll drive like a streak. You need a pick-me-up with that grouch of yours."

He stared at her. He, the great Blue, being checked by a flapper! But she was so pretty, so saucy, he decided to forgive and forget. Besides, a spot of something would perk him up.

Liane watched them climb into the speedy roadster half amused, half envious. No wonder Muriel always got her man! She certainly went after this one calmly enough. Liane wondered just how deep her feeling for the impecunious Chuck Desmond had bitten. Muriel was frightfully susceptible. She was the modern feminine version of the roving sailor. She had a boy in every port.

Liane went down the aisle, through the now darkened theater. A workman was hammering away at a set and the chief electrician, a tall, bold-looking young Dane, stopped to stare at her. She felt impelled to explain her presence there. "I'm looking for my mother," she said.

His smile angered her. "Ho, the mamma's girl!" he returned, silkily. "Always so polite, so correct. Vonder what she is really like, this haughty one."

LIANE tossed her head and started to pass. In her haste she did not notice the tangle of wires and she stumbled and would have fallen if the big man had not reached out and caught her in his arms.

She screamed. "You—you awful creature!" She struck out at him wildly, her small fists falling him. He was laughing, holding her tight. Oh, how she hated him! Now, she thought, she knew how murderers felt. The lust for killing. She knew what it meant to see red.

Suddenly a hurricane was upon them. The tall Dane went whirling.

"You—scum!" That was a familiar voice but whose?

A shabby young man in a striped suit dusted off his hands with a burlesque gesture. The Dane picked himself up, felt of his jaw.

"Was this—carrion—annoying you, my good girl?" inquired the newcomer, in his best Drury Lane manner.

Liane almost giggled. He made it seem funny. He took away from her the feeling that she was soiled, unclean, from this distasteful contact.

"He certainly was," she said soberly. "I've never spoken three words to him in all my life."

"Wot a nerve!" Chuck Desmond shot his cuffs and favored the vanquished one with a baleful stare. "He's the kind of bird who gets his picture on the front pages when a man-hunt is on," he said.

"See here, my good man," slipping his card in the direction of the furious electrician. "If ever I hear of you annoying the Duchess again I'll have my three pet police captains on your neck with charges that won't sound pretty with the morning coffee."

Desmond stuck out his arm and Liane crooked her fingers over it gratefully. "I'll see you to your carriage," he told her.

"You were wonderful just now," Liane marveled as they walked down the road.

"Where's this here-now Miss Ladd gone and fluttered away to?" demanded Charles Desmond, sticking the inevitable cigar between his lips and hunting in five separate pockets for the non-existent match. "Here it's my day off and everything and I get on my bike and trail away out here to find her missing!"

LIANE started to explain but I thought better of it. "She—she went home," she finished lamely. "Got herself another boy friend?" he inquired.

"There was—somebody just dropped in," improvised Muriel's friend.

"Oh, yeah?" Desmond appeared doubtful. "Well, I can't waste the entire evening just because she changed her mind. How about you trotting off and having dinner with me? I can't eat alone. I'm funny that way. Been so since earliest childhood."

"Oh, dear, if mother only would let me!" cried Liane childishly. "Well, there's nothing like inquiring," Chuck said.

Liane introduced the pair and to her utter amazement Cass beamed on the young man.

"Wasn't your mother Grace Franks, who played Shakespearean roles long ago?" she inquired.

Charles said "yes" very solemnly. "I thought so," Cass nodded. "You run along, Liane, and change your dress while I talk to Mr. Desmond. There are so many things I want to ask him."

Will wonders never cease, thought Liane, as she hastily slipped into her one presentable frock.

Chuck Desmond was funny. He was nice, even though he wasn't the "Not Impossible He." She realized she would have a hard time squaring herself with Muriel if that young woman ever learned the truth.

"What are you thinking about?" inquired that irrepressible young man, Chuck Desmond.

Liane smiled faintly. "Wondering if Muriel will mind my bagging her young man?"

"So ho, then! I'm advertised as such." He pretended to be annoyed.

"You are," Liane dimpled at him. Desmond surveyed her with interest. "You're pretty nice, easy on the eye. How come you haven't a permanent boy trailing you?"

She tossed her head, enjoying herself. "How do you know I haven't?"

"Sorry." Liane thought, "This is good practice for me. Maybe the next time I see Van Rohard, I won't be such a school-girlish idiot."

Her heart pounded at the thought. "Next time I see him." For of course, she would. And soon!

Gly-Cas Restores Health to Both Man and Wife; Given Complete Relief from Rheumatism, Stomach, Kidney Trouble.

MR. A. M. CLAUS

"Gly-Cas is the greatest of all remedies," said Mr. A. M. Claus, 328 Oak St., Grand Island, Neb., respected old citizen of that city. "I had suffered years with rheumatism over my entire body, so crippled at times I could hardly walk, was also bothered with severe stomach trouble, had to be careful of my diet, bloated suffered terribly with excruciating gas pains, could not sleep or get my rest. My wife was bothered with kidney trouble, too, and we both sought relief in all kinds of medicines and treatments but all in vain until we began taking Gly-Cas. This new herbal remedy is wonderful, both my wife and I praise it as without an equal. That terrible rheumatism and stomach trouble has been driven entirely out of my system, I sleep well and feel fine, and my wife has been relieved of that awful kidney trouble which bothered her for years. Gly-Cas certainly made new health for the both of us."

Reno Night Clubs Raided By Federals

Reno, July 1—(AP)—Forty Federal prohibition agents last night and today raided virtually all night clubs and liquor houses here and took possession of them, interrupting merry-making by a crowd which had gathered for the opening of the racing season beginning this afternoon.

The night clubs and liquor places, which have been running wide open, were packed when the agents began their raids last night. Bedlam ensued. The officers arrested approximately 50 bartenders and proprietors and carted loads of evidence to the police station. None of the customers was arrested.

The agents, commanded by Col. George Seaver of the San Francisco regional prohibition office, visited nearly every known liquor place in Reno and the outlying village of Sparks.

Among the places raided were the Silver Slipper and "The Lawtons."

Nevada having repealed her state liquor law and having voted affirmatively on proposals for revision of the Federal dry law, leaves the whole problem of enforcement to Federal authorities.

PROPAGANDA OF BEER RUMORS TO BE INVESTIGATED

President Hoover To Seek Basis Of So Many Reports

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, July 1. —(UP)—The White House may shortly undertake an investigation to ascertain the source of one of the certain propaganda campaigns officialdom here has encountered—the circulation of beer rumors.

During the past three weeks 150 queries have come to the executive officers from all sections of the country—all couched in the same general lines.

The rumors or tips generally intimate President Hoover is shortly to issue a statement in favor of four per cent beer. The percentage never varies unless no percentage is given. Sometimes the tip is only that the Executive is to declare himself in favor of light wines and beers.

White House officials consider it singular also that the rumors frequently purport to emanate from some man of high authority out in the various cities. Those who bear the reports to Mr. Hoover's office generally say they would not trouble the Executive with such a matter except that "it comes from such a responsible authority that there must be something to it."

The rumors started about three months ago, but during the past two weeks they have been coming daily. They started originally in the American tip factory—Wall Street—where most good and bad political rumors originate.

They have come also from financial sources in Cleveland and Pittsburgh and the Chicago Board of Trade. One came from Seattle, another from San Francisco.

Mr. Hoover's spokesmen say unequivocally that Mr. Hoover is considering no statement on beer or wines, four per cent or otherwise.

Politicians here do not consider such a move likely.

The truth of the matter is that the President has been knee-deep in negotiations over his international debt holiday plan during the past two weeks. He has not given consideration to other matters, except during the weekend when he took Chairman Wickersham of the Law Enforcement Commission to the Rapidan. The beer matter did not come up, Mr. Hoover's friends insist.

This Month Sees 100th Anniversary Of Machine Farming

By CECIL G. DOUGLAS
Chicago, July 1. —(AP)—Mechanized agriculture today neared the beginning of its second century.

It was on a July day 100 years ago in a Virginia wheat field that Cyrus Hall McCormick successfully cut a strip of grain with his reaper. That crude machine and those of other agricultural experiments were forerunners of the speedy motor-powered combines now harvesting the great 1931 crops of the American wheat belt.

Before the reaper, harvesting was man's most arduous task. Prior to that July day (the exact date has never been ascertained) from the dawn of civilization but slight betterments had been made in the important work of gathering foodstuffs. Only the scythe and cradle had been added to man's harvesting equipment since Ruth gleaned the fields of Boaz in Biblical times.

McCormick's first reaper was watched, as it cut cleanly through the ripe wheat, by members of his family including his father, Robert, who had tried unsuccessfully to perfect such a machine. The witnesses included, also, a few scythe-men from adjacent fields whose occupation was wiped out within a few years by the reaper.

Patented in 1834 McCormick did not patent his reaper until 1834 and did not start marketing it until 1840. In the meantime other inventors developed similar machines and the rivalry their products engendered kept up for many years. This keen competition brought many improvements in the original harvesting machines as each firm strove to outdo the other.

It was McCormick's machine that Secretary Stanton head of the War Department in Lincoln's Cabinet testified rendered great service to the northern cause during the Civil War. He asserted it released regiments of men from the grain fields to the fight and assured the Union states' food supply during the conflict.

The first reaper merely cut some 8 to 10 acres of wheat in a day with threshing to follow. The combines now in common use, in a single operation harvest and thresh some 30 to 40 acres a day.

McCormick died in 1884. He had built his reaper factory in Chicago and developed a great business still engaged in the manufacture of farm machinery.

Jews Deserting City Of Salonica Enmasse

Salonica, July 1. —(UP)—Jews deserted the city in droves today, stricken with fear that recurrent communal riots might result in further bloodshed.

The authorities considered ordering martial law.

The troops on patrol throughout the city were instructed to fire after three warnings in case of further trouble. Pierce hatred resulted in further demonstrations but no casualties since yesterday's fighting were reported.

The police fired into the air to disperse a group of 100 pro-Jewish Communists, holding a demonstration which threatened to become violent. Ten deaths occurred in yesterday's fighting, and 50 persons were injured.

The Jewish quarter was set afire, and upwards of 20 dwellings razed.

LABOR TURNOVER COSTS BUSINESS HUGE AMOUNTS

Nation-wide Employment Organization Offered As Solution

By GENE GILLETTE

Des Moines, July 1. —(UP)—The labor turnover is one of the greatest losses in business, according to Hans C. Pfund, whose experience as secretary of the Des Moines community employment bureau has encouraged him to advocate a nation-wide system of such organizations to deal with the employment problem.

Pfund charged that private employment bureaus in some cases foster labor turnover to increase their fees.

With every metropolitan area served by a community employment bureau and all of the local organizations welded together by congressional decree, Pfund considered it would be only a matter of time until records would be available on the working career of a majority of the laborers of the country.

Knowing that their movements from one job to another are being recorded and will be considered before they obtain new employment, Pfund believed that workers would desert their positions only in extreme cases.

As a further deterrent to labor turnover the community employment bureau substitutes for a general advertisement when a position is to be filled, Pfund said. Thus the persons who are without employment are surveyed at the outset in the possibility that one might be available for the opening.

This would be in contrast to the prevailing system, wherein the advertisements frequently draw employees from satisfactory positions leaving another position to be filled and the ranks of the unemployed untouched, he said.

Scientific work done by a community bureau without selfish interests reduces the percentage of misfits and failures, Pfund said he had found.

Perry, Iowa Man Is Ordered To Asylum

Adel, Ia., July 1. —(AP)—John Smith, Perry insecticide manufacturer, who disappeared Feb. 3 and was found bound and gagged on a highway, near Garner, Iowa, last week, today faced a commitment to Clarinda State Hospital for the Insane. District Judge E. W. Dingwell ordered Smith to the hospital for treatment when the Perry man was arraigned here late last night on a charge of conspiracy to defraud. Smith pleaded not guilty. George Sackett, Dalas county attorney, signed information for the charge.

The mystery of Smith's burning truck and the identity of the charred body found in the truck after Smith's disappearance near Denison, Ia., have never been explained. Nor has Smith, whom doctors declared mentally unbalanced, been able to tell what occurred during five months of absence.

An English shepherd dog owned by Harry Moore of Redmond, Ore., produced 51 pups in four litters of 10, 12, 14 and 15.
